Harvest season resumes after week-long shut down

By Brenda Bunting

Farmers in the area are hoping the dry, cool weather stays around for a few weeks, giving them time to get back into production.

The rainier-than-normal fall and now winter season has wreaked havoc with this year's harvest of sugarcane and vegetable crops, according to local growers.

"It's been a real struggle all year up to this point," says Ed Hamilton, general farm manager for A Duda and Sons, one of the largest vegetable producers in the area. "We are at half of our normal expectations for this time of year," he added.

Tropical Storm Gordon was hard on the area, dumping unwelcome rains on an already sodden muck soil. Two other heavy rainfalls since then have also raised the water tables and the latest storm dumped 4 to 7 inches in the Glades.

Mr. Kramer said his biggest concern is the young plant cane. "It tends to weaken the cane," he said. "It's not good for it to have so much water."

"Our radishes were the worst hit," said Mr. Hamilton. "We should be harvesting one million radishes by this time. We don't have 20 percent of that."

Radishes are reportedly going for $20 a box, but Mr. Hamilton said "Prices are very high, but our volumes are so low."

Bill Kramer, general manager for Sugar Cane Growers Cooperative, said the co-op is having to carefully pick and choose which fields they can go into for harvesting because of the wet ground.

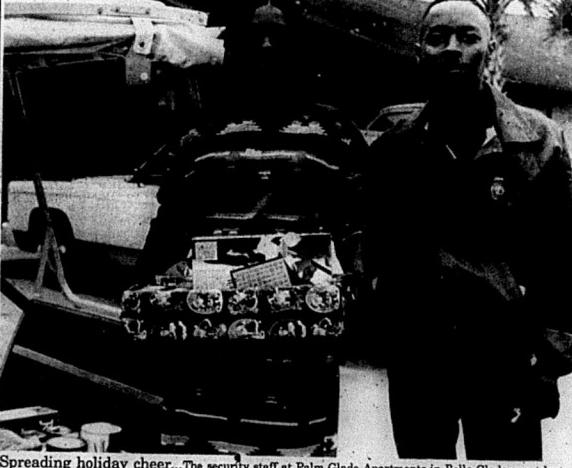

The co-op has had to shut down harvesting and milling four times this year because of the rains. "It costs more to have to start up and shut down," he said. "For every day we delay, though, it extends the harvest season," he added.

Mr. Kramer said his biggest concern is the young plant cane. "It tends to weaken the cane," he said. "It's not good for it to have so much water."

Holiday X-cess...Christmas day must have been good for many families in the Glades, judging from the amount of holiday wrapping paper and boxes left in special dumpsters throughout the city. Sanitation workers began dumping the specially-marked "X-mas boxes only" on Monday morning.

Spreading holiday cheer...The security staff at Palm Glade Apartments in Belle Glade spent last Thursday afternoon delivering food to needy families in the apartment complex. Fifteen families were surprised with a box of food. Shown is recipient Gloria Anderson, mother of six children ages 5 to 16 and Capt. James Earl Jones.

Football banquet recognizes numerous individuals and coaches

Tammy Jackson

Staff Reporter

A successful football season calls for a unique banquet and individualized recognition for all of the players. The Glades Panthers ended their football season with only one loss and Head Coach Daniel Bythwood was committed to showing the coaches that he appreciated their determination and their will to succeed. Mr. Bythwood said he also teaches the young men to respect each other and have fun in the process.

The special banquet was held at Pioneer Park in Belle Glade and each player received a trophy and some of the players were awarded with special recognition. Trophies were awarded for Most Improved Offensive Player, Most Improved Defensive Player, Most Valuable Player, Best Academic Player, etc.

Coach Bythwood said, "It is mandatory that each of the players that participate on this squad turn their report cards in to the coaching staff." He said if a child is unsuccessful in school, or is not putting forth their best effort in the classroom, they will not be permitted to participate on the football field.

A special award was presented

Santos Rodriguez Jr. According to Coach Bythwood, Mr. Santos is a dedicated parent and the team appreciates his assistance. Mr. Santos maintains and drives the team bus.

Assisting Coach Bythwood with preparations for the program and also preparing the mouthwatering meal that was served to the players, parents, coaches and visitors, were members of the Belle Glade Police Department. The parents themselves also helped in the function. They were Laura Lester, Irvin Spencer, Santos Rodriguez Jr., Mary Rodriguez, Wilma Royal, A.J. Royal, Gloria McCloud, Robert Mobley, Lillie M. Williams, Irene Veren, Nora Lindsey, Valerie Howell, Marletha Pompey, Danella Bythwood, Cynthia Summers, Nathaniel Jackson, Sr., Nathaniel Jackson, Jr., Larry W. Summers, Sr., Larry W. Summers, Jr., Vilas Blackmon, Shirley Blackmon, Angela Perkins and Annie Bryant. While the police department prepared barbecue chicken and hot dogs, the parents prepared french fries, fried fish, and potatoe salad.

Coach Bythwood praised his wife, Louise, with much of the preparation for the event. He said she plays an important part of the team and its success.

Coach Bythwood said he wanted the children to receive the recognition that they so rightly deserved.

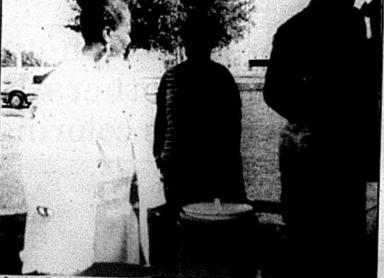

The youth football program celebrated the end of their winning season with a barbecue banquet held recently at Pioneer Park. During a ceremony, team members and coaches were presented with trophies for the season.

Love, though proverbially blind, is often very prone to see something which has no existence whatever.'

The Aleut people of the Aleutian Islands once built their homes underground, much like large basements.

Louise Bythwood, along with several other volunteers, prepared fish and french fries for the barbecue banquet.

Editor receives Independent News "Jim Miller Excellence Award"

Independent Newspapers, Inc., the parent company of The Sun, has announced that Sun editor, Brenda Bunting, has won a 1994 Excellence Award for "Exceptional Newsroom Leadership."

The ninth annual recognition program recognizes exceptional accomplishments and contributions and memorializes the late Jim Miller, an Independent employee and editor whose bright, earthy writing was popularized in the Delaware State News for more than 30 years.

Independent Newspapers, Inc., owns 28 newspapers in four states, Florida, Delaware, Arizona and Maryland, and four printing companies. A record 50 employees and their newspapers and printing plants won awards this year.

Florida Independent Newspaper President Richard Hitt presented the award and a check to Mrs. Bunting on Dec. 13.

"Brenda is dedicated and efficient. She really lives by Independent's 'Newsroom Guidelines' with issue-oriented coverage, guest commentaries, group photos and a strong Speak Out column," said Mr. Hitt.

"In addition, under her leadership, the paper has experienced a major financial turnaround in the past year as she built a solid team. She insists on continuous improvement for herself and others and involves people in decision-making," he added.

Mrs. Bunting has been in the newspaper business for 16 years, starting with the Belle Glade Herald in 1978 as the office manager and a part-time photographer and news reporter. She has seen the newspaper change hands and names three times, from The Belle Glade Herald, to The Herald-Observer and then to The Sun newspaper when Independent bought the newspaper in 1987.

She became the editor in 1991 and added the title general manager in 1992. This is the second year in a row she has won the Jim Miller Excellence Award, having won last year for editorial page content.

"I'm stunned to win this two years in a row," said Mrs. Bunting. "I can't think of any other job I would rather do than this, and to win an award for doing what I love is wonderful," she said. "Our newspaper isn't perfect and there are areas I want to see improve, but on the whole, I think our small staff does a good job of providing a lot of local, hometown news for our readers."

Mrs. Bunting and her husband, Bob, have lived in Belle Glade for 24 years. They have two married sons, Robert, Jr. and Chris.

The "Newroom Excellence Award" was presented to The Sun Editor and General Manager Brenda Bunting by Florida Regional President Richard Hitt recently.

Why are they closing

Airport Park?

"Why is Airport Park closed at 3:30 p.m. on a Thursday afternoon?"

I got off work and went out there to walk my dog, and it was closed.

This is four times, at least, in the last year that I have had to call someone at the police department to let me in. They have been very responsive, and I appreciate it, but I'm tired off because I have to turn around and go and call them.

I also called the Belle Glade Recreation Department before I called the police department. I was told they had gone for the day."

caught in that South Bay Speed Trap that all of South Florida knows about?"

I would go to court and fight this injustice but when I read the following on the ticket, I know that I wouldn't get a fair hearing. It says, "NOTE: The Court may impose a maximum fine of $600 or require attendance at a driver improvement school or both." Does that sound like equal protection under the law or "Kanga-Roo Court" rules?

I just wanted you to know about how one tourist views the inflexibility of law enforcement in South Bay and Palm Beach County.

This is a disgruntled citizen who received a traffic citation. He does not dispute the fact that he was speeding, only that he was issued a ticket instead of a warning.

South Bay is not a speed trap. It is a city which will ticket people who are violating our traffic laws or any other laws."

Dear Editor:

Recently, while on a visit to a sick daughter in Davie, I happened to pass through the village of South Bay. Immediately upon rounding the curve from the north, I saw a sign announcing Speed Limit - 45 mph. Immediately, I made an attempt to slow from 57 mph to 45 mph. At the same instant, a city policeman going the other way claims to have clocked me at 62 mph. There were three vehicles all headed south and I was the middle one, and the only one from out of state.

While the not too courteous policeman was writing up my ticket he announced that he wasn't running a "speed trap" I hadn't even said anything about that. He must have read my mind or had a guilty conscience!

The policeman said that he was doing me a favor. Instead of charging me with "speeding" as originally announced, he was lowering the charge to some murky catch-all "Speed too fast for conditions." Thus saving me $70.

Nice that the law is so flexible! It could have been a warning just as easily if the issue was truly safety.

I announced to my son-in-law, who is a truck driver, what had happened. He said, "you got caught in that South Bay Speed Trap that all of South Florida knows about?"

I would go to court and fight this injustice but when I read the following on the ticket, I know that I wouldn't get a fair hearing. It says, "NOTE: The Court may impose a maximum fine of $600 or require attendance at a driver improvement school or both." ## Blackboard bungle: Schools are missing the mark on economic basics

By David H. Busse
President of the Institution for World Capitalism

The trouble with people is not (what) they don't know," observed the 19th Century humorist Josh Billings, "but that they know so much that ain't so."

When Washington politicians discuss the wonderful things government does for the economy (others might say to the economy), a casual listener not versed in economics could infer that government is the engine of prosperity and wealth.

Indeed, President Clinton was elected in 1992 apparently primarily as the result of his promise to "involve" government more actively than had the Bush Administration in "creating jobs" and "getting the economy moving again."

The tendency of many Americans to think of government as the primary factor in promoting and sustaining economic well-being may reflect the lack of understanding of the basics of economics, given that it is the private sector that creates jobs.

According to the survey, only 39 percent of the public was able to answer the most basic questions about economy. Only 36 percent knew the basic purpose of profits in an economy, and just 13 percent had any idea of the percentage rate of profit earned by major American corporations.

produces income, and otherwise determines our economic health as a nation.

Just as members of Congress cut ribbons and praise themselves for having spent our money on new public projects, presidents have a habit of taking credit for the economic good produced by the marketplace - and more than a few voters perennially buy the cent lock, stock and pork barrel.

Is there a general lack of economic "literacy" that contributes to the modern tendency to see the state as the alpha and the omega of material abundance? A 1992 survey by The Gallup Organization and the National Center for Research in Economic Education would seem to suggest it.

According to the survey, only 39 percent of the public was able to answer the most basic questions about economy. Only 36 percent knew the basic purpose of profits in an economy, and just 13 percent had any idea of the percentage rate of profit earned by major American corporations.

The survey findings contained this warning: "This economic illiteracy has the potential to misshape public opinion on economic issues and lead to economic policies that have negative or perverse effects on the economy."

That one sentence may explain the persistence of political support for expansion of the American welfare state at a time when much of the rest of the world is moving toward capitalism and free markets.

Did those interviewed for the survey believe they had gotten enough information about the economy when they attended high school or college? According to the council, "The only issue in the survey on which there was a near unanimous agreement was that the schools should teach more about how our economy works."

Perhaps the first economic reality our schools can do a better job of teaching is an obvious one: government does not enrich the free market, the free market enriches the government.

Loved ones are not gone but only in "the next room"

By Paula Swaford, R.N.,
Administrator,
ABC Home Health Services, Inc.

It seems to me that just as the sentimental holidays roll around every year, we seem to hear of more tragedy, grief and suffering.

Is there really more...or are we just more in tune to family and home situations at those times?

I found this poem that I would like to share with all of you who have lost a friend, a companion, an acquaintance, a co-worker, or a treasured loved one.

Death is nothing at all...I have only slipped away into the next room. Nothing has happened.

Everything remains exactly as it was. I am I, and you are you, and the old life that we lived so fondly together is untouched, unchanged. What ever we were to each other, that we are still.

Call me by the old familiar name. Speak of me in the easy way which you always used.

Put no difference into your tone. Wear no forced 'air' of solemnity or sorrow.

Laugh as we always laughed at the little jokes that we enjoyed together.

Play, smile, think of me, pray for me: Let my name be ever the household word that it always was. Let it be spoken without an effort, without the ghost of a shadow upon it.

Life means all that it ever meant. It is the same as it ever was.

There is absolute and unbroken continuity. Why should I be out of mind because I am out of sight?

I am but waiting for you, for an interval, somewhere very near, just-around-the-corner. All is well."

Death is something that we never get used to; but time does help us learn to cope with it...each in our own way. Treasure the memories as you continue your own life's walk.

Residents urged to enter "Largest vegetable contest"

The Palm Beach County Cooperative Extension Service and the South Florida Fair are again sponsoring a Largest Vegetable Contest to recognize local vegetable growers. The contest is open to anyone growing vegetables including commercial growers, however, the vegetables entered must be grown by the exhibitor.

The Largest Vegetable Contests, which is held annually on opening day of the South Florida Fair, has six prize categories ranging from $25 to $200 for adults 18 years and up and youth under 18 years. Twenty-five common vegetables, including some tropical vegetables, are eligible for entries.

To enter the contest, applicants should bring their vegetables to the fairgrounds on opening day between 10 a.m. and noon and take the vegetable to Building 6 which is the Agricultural Building. There they will fill out a registration form, have their vegetables weighed and at noon the winners will be announced. The winner will be determined by multiplying the weight of the specimen in ounces by the points per ounce with the largest score being the top winner. No more than one prize, however, can be awarded to a person.

For more information, call the fair at 793-0333, or the Extension Service at 233-1750.

1995 hurricane season forecast is very active

By Mike Lyons

"Tis the season to be jolly. No, I'm not talking about the holidays, (although that phrase certainly does apply) I'm referring to the change in our weather. Welcome to the dry season in Florida. That wonderful five month stretch characterized by cool nights, mild days and very little rain.

For those of us who call this place home, the dry season has been slow in coming. This past week's heavy rains (up to 9 inches in some parts of our area) made it the wettest December in history. Our yearly total of over 85 inches means it's the second wettest 12 month period since we've been keeping records.

Eventually, though, the real dry season will kick into gear and the living will be easy. But, before you get to comfortable with that thought let me burst your bubble with the latest from Dr. Bill Gray. Call him the Grinch who stole Christmas.

Dr. Gray is a professor of atmospheric science at Colorado State University who has become well known for his forecasting ability. Dr. Gray doesn't forecast rain or snow or even changes in temperatures. What he does predict is hurricanes and he's the best in the business.

He is so good that he can predict the number of hurricanes and tropical storms months before they even develop. That's why I'm calling him a Grinch. The holidays are in full swing, the hurricane season is over six months away, yet Dr. Gray has issued his forecast for 1995. A prediction you're not going to like.

Dr. Gray thinks the 1995 season will be "extremely active." Specifically, he is forecasting 12 named storms, eight hurricanes and three major hurricanes. "This year, more of the factors we use to issue our forecast point to an active season than we've seen since the active years of 1988 and 1989," Dr. Gray said.

Dr. Gray's forecasts are for tropical systems that form in the Atlantic Basin, the region that includes the Atlantic Ocean, the Caribbean Sea and the Gulf of Mexico. His forecast doesn't predict where the storms will make landfall.

However, on the average the U.S. coastline is struck by at least one hurricane each year. Florida has been hit more often than any other state (58 times this century!). So, when Dr. Gray says we'll see more storms in the Atlantic Basin all of us in Florida should be concerned.

Dr. Gray and his research team use five primary factors in their hurricane forecast: the strength or weakness of the El Nino, the direction of winds near the equator at 68,000 feet, rainfall in West Africa, temperature and pressure readings in West Africa and pressure readings in the Atlantic Ocean and Caribbean Sea.

Dr. Gray says several of those factors point to increased hurricane activity in 1995. "Chief among these factors is the long-anticipated dissipation of the El Nino which I think will occur in the spring or early summer," Dr. Gray said.

If Dr. Gray is right (and he usually is) it means 1995 will be a busy year in the tropics. And, a potentially devastating one. We all remember what Tropical Storm Gordon did to our area. Well, Gordon was a weak storm. Imagine what a hurricane, a category three hurricane with 115 mile per hour winds, might do to our area.

See what I mean? Dr. Gray is the Grinch who stole Christmas.

Mike Lyons is the weatherman for WPBF, Channel 25.
